HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption *unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entire*ly beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?" The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is God that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs. Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased. If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishment; food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consuming patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve herself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon fact that Dr. Schenck's rests. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated, the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North SIXTH St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

LITTLE GOLDENHAIR.

Goldenhair climbed upon grandpapa's knee;
Dear little Goldenhair, tired was she,
All the day busy as busy could be.

Up in the morning as soon as 'twas light,
Out with the birds and butterflies bright,
Skipping about till the coming of night.

Grandpapa toyed with the curls on her head.
"What has my darling been doing," he said,
"Since she rose with the sun from her bed?"

"Pitty much," answered the sweet little one.
"I cannot tell so much things I have done;
Played with my dolly and feeded my bun.

"And then I jumped with my little jump-rope;
And I made out of some water and soap
Bootiful worlds, mamma's castles of hope.

"I afterward readed in my picture-book;
And Bella and I we went to look
For the smooth little stones by the side of the brook.

"And then I comed home and eated my tea,
And I climbed up on grandpapa's knee,
And I jes as tired as tired can be."

Lower and lower the little head pressed,
Until it had dropped upon grandpapa's breast.
Dear little Goldenhair, sweet be thy rest!

We are but children; things that we do
Are as sports of a babe to the Infinite view,
That marks all our weakness and pities it too.

God grant that when night overshadows our way,
And we shall be called to account for our day
He shall find us as guileless as Goldenhair's lay.

And oh, when aweary, may we be so blest,
And sink like the innocent child to our rest,
And feel ourselves clasped to the Infinite breast.

For the Globe.

Spots on the Sun.

It is not my intention to unnecessarily alarm the public—far from it. I am not an agitator, no sir, but sir the people should be prepared. As the chances are the sun wont enlighten them much longer I must; I am a lesser light, but the shine is not all out of me.

Beloved public, do you know the danger that threatens you; in all candor have you read the papers? do you ever neglect the sacred duty of perusing the chronicles of the world's pulsations? I fear me you do, some of you. Astronomers, those doctors of the winds, tides, comets, moons, who measure space, currents, lights, shadows, and hurl stupendous arrays of figures at the common heads of the dwellers on the globe, sure that no man but a monomaniac on the subject of arithmetic would ever attempt to question their correctness, and if he did what would we care—not much—only a matter of a million or two of miles. There has been your mistake; you have paid more attention to a delegate election, a ballet girl's limbs, or the price of butter—now you must see your error.

Fellow-humans, aye, all of you denizens on this mundane sphere, beware, prepare!—the sun's full of spots! You know how an honest man hates to be spotted—now, how does Sol stand it? The Old Boy's face is caving in! The cusses above referred to (astronomers) say he has an opening you could drop the world in without touching the sides. Bless my soul! suppose some of them astronomers should try to drop us in the hole to prove the correctness of their measurement. Let the police look to it; "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty;" let every man be vigilant; shoot down the first astronomer who would drop his mother earth into the sun's vacuum. Let rifle clubs organize; tax balloons; take the drawing glasses out of the telescopes; grease the earth's axis that she may run faster; get longer poles; petition Grant to send Anna Dickinson as special envoy to court the sun—anything to make him keep his distance until he recovers his ancient health. Suppose he douses his glim, what will we do? Has any preparation been made? has Congress put such a tax on coal oil that we cannot export it?—that should be done instantly—we must light up our end, at all hazard we must. Are not the beacon lights of liberty ours? Is not the light literature of the world ours? Are not our Legislative bodies famous for the light manner they regard their duties?—don't they all represent enlightened constituents? Can we afford to lose all this? When the eyes of the rest of the world are shrouded in gloom let the American eagle, surrounded by patent suns, fed by invisible tubes of coal oil, be seen arising in his full spread, shrieking: "For coal oil Eagle is my name; out for a bust, my coves, out for a bust, my coves, for coal oil Eagle is my name," etc.

I offer myself as the American Victor Hugo, and address the sun as follows: By your memory of Joshua, beware! Do you know us? Do you think we will permit secession? Look at Appomattox Court House. Again, beware! Withhold your rays, and we will raise——. Ah, ha! you tremble! Would you have us cease our revolutions? where then would be your reflections? Are we not of a common paternity? are we—do you know? Go on in this way putting your comely visage in mourning and we will export Coolies to your realm—then what will become of your intelligent skilled workman? Ah, ho! Lilly White is good for blotches; is your blood out of order? try Helmbold's, or Hostetter's, or Schenck's, or any other Bitter remedy—we can spare them (and the compounders.) Reflect! ar-ray yourself in cheerful garb; do us a smile. What will our poets do?—what substitute for "rosy dawn," "genial rays," "glare of molten lead," for "beams kissing fair nature's hand?" Don't go back on Nature; she's been true to you, old man; you gave her rays, and she's raised from her plenteous bosom, flies, mosquitoes, fleas, bugs, corn, oats, serials infinitum, quinces, persimmons, poppers and other luscious fruits.

Would you have all us children of earth singing sadly "who will care for mother now?" Don't leave us orphans; will each man's portion be a sigh-lum? What will the Mrs. Grundys of the planets say at this base desertion? A thought is mine—accursed thought—have the winds, those tyrants, vacillating creatures, carried into your realm any of Greeley's articles on Farming? No wonder you frown, no wonder your cheerful face wears gloom for raiment; we can't help it; we have done a little to prevent its circulation, and we promise more. All portions of this home of ours has its trial or curse—vomito, cholera, war, missionaries—and we have Greeley! Possibly you smile; why fore? wherefore? Air your laugh chronic?

Oh Sun! ho Sun! we beg thee heal up, close up, fill up, shut up; affright us not by dread of your loss. Don't chuck us into your gap; we are not warriors—would rather die in the last ditch than a gap. Just light us up again by a breakfast of stars; we can't get along without them. If you have not light enough to go round, give us the moon's share; she don't do us much good. We are not in love—if we were we would prefer a lamp with adjustible burner. She makes our lunatics worse, (witness our congressional proceedings.) and fills our show-windows with artistic daubs, for a picture's not a picture without moonlight Send Luna off without her share, and save us from our artists. Astronomers say she is not inhabited; they told us of your failing, and I guess they know. We are inhabited—yes, badly! Adieu! We would bless you. Fall gently on our mother's neck, say you forgive us, say you will smile again, or else, or else, we will use your waning beams to batter you into subjection. We would not resort to harsh measures—beware! be good or be hanged!

We hope much from this address; we think the effect will be good—if not we will ask Wm. D. Kelley to write an article on the tariff. We hate cruelty and would not use so severe a remedy, but self-preservation actuates us.—Something must be done and soon—The more I think of this subject the more agitated I become.

Our currents are all out of order, so say the astronomers. I notice the crop has been poor for some time, and sugar's very dear; the electric current's the worse—its course was formerly N. S. W. E., but now its E W. S. N. Any man of intelligence can foretell the result—it must come. It's all wrong; it pervades everything. What would poor Christopher Columous do now, in the present state of the currents? how would he navigate? like Toodles?—The electric needle vacillates and it points uncertain; it knows no north, no south, no east, no west. You can't get the proper elevation of the atmosphere; an observation is impossible except on the part of the crew; then to take a reckoning is almost useless.—Our ship-owners are gradually overcoming that difficulty by employing Yankees—"I reckon" that's a good plan. I should not be able to write as intelligently on this subject of navigation had I not bought some canal shares and joined a boat club.

Every man owes a duty to posterity; posterity is always looked to by unappreciated intelligence to do them justice—that's me—but my warning voice was raised, and the future historian writing by the light of other days, (the sun having passed away,) will say, I was not an idle ALARMIST.

☞ A little ragged urchin, being in the streets the other day, was asked by a lady who filled his basket if his parents were living.

"Only dad, ma'am," said the boy.

"Then you have enough in your basket to feed the family for some time," said the lady.

"Oh, no I haven't neither," said the lad, "for me and dad keep five boarders; he does the housework and I do the market'n."

Somebody has discovered that in forty years a snuff-taker devotes twenty-four months to blowing his nose.

The Old Withered Leaf.

An aged man, much bent with years, with white hair, and shriveled face, stood looking into a Sabbath-school room. There were multitudes of children gathered there to attend the anniversary, to sing their songs, and then to join a pic-nic. Who ever knew children to be absent from a pic-nic? Soon the old man turned away, and the tears were falling fast as he reached a bench under the big elm and sat down alone. I thought perhaps he once had a child in that room with the children but now no more; or perhaps he was mourning that he had no such advantages when a child. So I went to him and said:

"My friend, can I comfort you?—Perhaps if you will tell me the cause of your tears I may be able to help you. Have you lost a child?"

"No, but I have lost something not less valuable. I am an old man as you see. I have never done anything worth mentioning for the Great Master, and I must die feeling I have been a barren tree in His vineyard."

"Have you never tried to do anything for Him?"

"Yes, but I was old when I came into the vineyard. All I have done is to teach one class of little boys. I tried to drop a few seeds into their hearts, but, alas, what a useless life!"

He was silent, and wept no more, and I was thinking how to comfort him, when I heard footsteps behind me, and turning, saw a man who was young and old at the same moment! He walked with a measured tread, and strong wings, and I knew in a moment it was the Angel of Time. Gently he took the old man by the hand and led him out into the field. In the middle of the field stood a solitary tree; it had one single, withered leaf hanging alone on a limb.

"Do you see the withered leaf?"

"I do."

"Now listen to it, and mark what it says.' The old leaf began to quiver and shake, and with a dry, husky voice tried to speak aloud:

"Well, here I am, the last of my generation! How fresh, and green, and young we once were as we rustled our wings in the joy of summer. How the birds hid and sang in our shade, and the sunbeams tried in vain to get in among us. Alas, they are all gone, and I am left alone, dry, withered, forsaken and useless! I never did any good and never shall. To be sure I have a little seed wrapped up in my foldings, which a storm threw into my bosom; it is a very little seed, and all I could do was to keep it warm thro' the winter. But now I must drop off and be lost and forgotten, and the little seed be lost with me."

Just then there came a strong wind through the tree, and the poor old leaf was wrenched off and driven over fences and fields, a long distance, till it fell into a garden. The old man looked and followed it more earnestly.

"Now," said the Angel of Time, "mark the result."

The old man watched the leaf as it slowly unfolded and dropped the little seed upon the ground; it then spread itself over the seed to protect it, and soon it began to decay. In a short time the leaf had all turned to dust, but in the place where it lay there sprung up a little stem, presently it grew larger and larger, till it became a great tree, loaded with the most luscious fruit; birds came and built nests and sang in its branches; a kind lady came often and plucked the fruit and carried it to the poor people in the village; people sent from a distance to obtain scions from the tree for grafting their own; year after year, for a century, it stood in the garden, a blessing to all.

"Dost thou see what has come out of that little seed?" said the Angel of Time to the old man.

"Truly I do, and marvel that such great good could come from one little seed. But why must that old leaf receive and keep that little seed?"

"Because if it had fallen on the soil in the shade, under the tree on which the leaf hung, it could never have grown. It needed to be brought into this very garden, and planted in that very spot, and it needed the old leaf to cover and shelter it, to make it live. Was the old leaf useless?"

"Oh, no!"

"Never will the little seed that you received and dropped into the hearts of those little boys be lost. Trees of righteousness will come from it yet."

The old man wept again. They were tears of joy now; his heart was glad

How to Clean Oil-Cloths.—To ruin them, clean them with hot water or soapsuds and leave them half-wiped, and they will look very bright while wet, but very dingy and dirty when dry, and will soon crack and peel off. But if you wish to preserve them, and have them look new and nice, wash them with soft flannel and luke-warm water and wipe perfectly dry. If you want them to look extra nice, after they are wiped drop a few spoonfuls of milk over them, and rub them with a dry cloth.

A Bear Story.

We remember a very comical bear that belonged to Mr. Hammond, and amused with his tricks, the mirth loving people of Oxford county, Maine, many years ago. He was captured when a little cub, and was brought up by hand as one of the family. He claimed the warmest place on the hearthstone, and nestled in cold weather with the dogs before the fire.—None of the pet animals about the farm were tamer than he; and none loved better to climb up into his master's lap and receive his caress.

One Sunday the family went to the church, and left the bear alone at home. Bruin improved the opportunity and rumaged all over the house in search of fun or something to eat. Unfortunately the good housewife had left the cellar-door unlocked and ajar, and it was not long before the bear discovered it and crept down the stairs. Once down the cellar he espied a molasses barrel, and if there was anything in the house he was excessively fond of it was molasses or honey. Bruin pawed over the barrel, licked the tightly-driven bung, and was about abandoning it in despair, when he espied the spile. Grasping it with his strong teeth, he easily withdrew it, and out came the thick molasses in a steady stream, to the great delight of the bear, who clapped his mouth to the hole, and sucked away with grunts of self satisfaction.

The molasses still flowed, and still the bear kept his mouth to the orifice, pausing now and then to take a long breath. At length he was full; his stomach could hold no more, yet his appetite was not satisfied. He squatted on his haunches and viewed the still running stream with disgust to think that the supply was so abundant, and that, alas! he could take no more.

The molasses had now run out in large quantity, and had formed a great pool on the floor, but Bruin dove into it, and rolled himself a thousand times in the thick fluid, until his shaggy coat was covered from his nose to his tail, with molasses, dirt, and gravel-stones.

There he lay in the sweet pool, the picture of self-satisfaction, as cats roll and tumble in a field of the catnip herb. All at once Mr. Bear became sick at the stomach; and it was a new sensation for him—something he had never felt before. As he grew worse he thought of his master and mistress, so he crept up stairs to ask for their consolation; but they had not returned from church. Then he crawled up another story, and got into the girls' bed drawing the snowy-white sheets over his besmeared form. There he lay groaning and grunting, the sickest bear ever seen in that part of the country.

When the girls arrived, they were horrified at the scene, and were going to lay the broomstick over Bruin when he started on the run for the haymow, with the sheets sticking to his back.—It was some time before the bear got well, and still longer before his mistress forgave him.

A Rat Story.

An old darkey in the Fourth district of New Orleans, has daily for months past, selected the door-step of a prominent residence for his noon-day nap. Being driven off one day he comes the next. With his head thrown back and his mouth wide open he snores away, to the exceeding discomfort of the inmates. Called to the door by this disagreeable diapason a few days since, the lady of the house concluded she would try an experiment. For this purpose she procured a small piece of ice and dropped it into the huge orifice that served as Sambo's mouth—it disappeared like a shot, and with a cough and a snort, Sambo started to his feet.

Just then some one cried out in the house that a big rat had run down "Uncle Sam's" throat. This added terror to his pain. He rolled on the banquette and cried lustily for help.

"'Fore God, missus, he's gnawing out'n me. I feel him. Oh, golly! he's kill'n me," and the whites of the darkey's eyes protruding like saucers, and the convulsed and anguished face, showed that real pain was strongly enhanced by his imaginary terror.

"Oh, golly, how he do jump and kick about," and Sambo again gave himself up to a paroxysm of lamentation.

Without any hesitation Sam started for the water plug. He turned on the crank and the water started. Sam glued his lips to the nozzle until his sides were puffed out like an inflated balloon.

"How do you feel now, Uncle Sam?" the lady inquired as Sambo staggered back to his seat.

"I guess he's drowned, missus; but here's what's troubling dis chile—how is dat rat gwine to git out'n dare?"

Rewards of Fidelity.—Never forsake a friend. When enemies gather around, when sickness falls on the heart—when the world is dark and cheerless—is the time to try a true friend. They who turn from you then prove that only interest moves them. If you have a friend who loves you, who has studied your interest and happiness, be sure to sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his former kindness is appreciated, and that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare, but it exists—in the heart. They only deny its worth and power who never loved a friend, or labored to make a friend happy.

India Rubber Carpets.

Dr. Jones, of Mobile, in the year 1834, in a letter to Prof. Silliman, said: "Having some India-rubber varnish left, which was prepared for another purpose, the thought occurred to me of trying it as a covering to a carpet, after the following manner:—A piece of canvas was stretched and covered with a thin coat of glue, [a fine canvas will probably answer best,] over this was laid a sheet or two of common brown paper, or newspaper, then another coat of glue was added, over which was laid a pattern of wall-paper with rich figures. After the body of the carpet was thus prepared, a very thin touch of glue was carried over the face of the paper, to prevent the India rubber varnish from tarnishing the beautiful colors of the paper. After this was dried, one or two coats, [as may be desired] of India-rubber varnish were applied, which, when dried, formed a surface as smooth as polished glass, through which the variegated colors of the paper appeared with undiminished, if not increased lustre.—This carpet is quite durable, and is impenetrable to water or grease of any description. When solid, it may be washed like a smooth piece of marble or wood. If silver or gold leaf forms the last coat, instead of papering, and the varnish is then applied, nothing can exceed the splendid richness of the carpet, which gives the floor the appearance of being burnished with gold or silver. A neat carpet on this plan will cost [when made of gold papering] about thirty-seven and a half cents a yard. When covered with gold or silver leaf, the cost will be about one dollar, or one dollar and fifty cents a yard.—Carpet Trade.

Proud of his Mother.

It was a cold night in winter; the wind blew and the snow was whirled furiously about, seeking to hide itself beneath cloaks and hoods, and in the very hair of those who were out. A distinguished lecturer was to speak, and notwithstanding the storm, the villagers ventured forth to hear him.

William Amnesly, buttoned up to his chin in his thick overcoat, accompanied his mother. It was difficult to walk through the fallen snow against the wind, and William said to his mother, "Couldn't you walk easier if you took my arm?"

"Perhaps I could," his mother said, as she put her arm through his and drew up as closely as possible to him. Together they breasted the storm, the mother and the boy, who had once been carried in her arms, but who had now grown up so tall that she could lean on his. They had not walked far before he said, "I am very proud to-night, mother."

"Proud that you can take care of me?" she said to him with a heart gushing with tenderness.

"This is the first time you have ever leaned on me," said the happy boy.

There will be few hours in that boy's life of more exalted pleasure than he enjoyed that evening, even if he lives to old age, and should in his manhood ovingly provide for her who, in his helpless infancy, watched over him.

How Men Regard Each Other.

There is a strong disposition in men of opposite minds to despise each other. A grave man can not conceive what is the use of wit in society; a person who takes a strong common-sense view of the subject is for pushing out by the head and shoulders an ingenious theorist, who catches at the faintest analogies; and another man, who scents the ridiculous from afar, will hold no commerce with him who tosts exquisitely the fine feeling of the heart and is alive to nothing else; whereas, talent is talent, and mind is mind, in all its branches! Wit gives to life one of its best flavors; common sense leads to immediate action, and gives society its daily motion; large and comprehensive views cause its annual rotation; ridicule chastises folly and imprudence, and keeps men in their proper sphere; subtlety seizes hold of the fine threads of truth; analogy darts away in the most sublime discoveries; feeling paints all the exquisite passions of man's soul, and rewards him by a thousand inward visitations, for the sorrows that come from without. God made it all! It is all good! We must despise no sort of talent; they all have their separate duties and uses—all the happiness of man for their object; they all improve, exalt, and gladden life.—Sydney Smith.

☞ Public dinner orators should be careful how they express themselves. The other day the builder of a church now in course of construction, when the toast of his health was given, rather enigmatically replied that he was "more fitted for the scaffold than for public speaking."

☞ A little girl being sent to the store to purchase some dye-stuff, and forgetting the name of the article, said to the clerk: "John what do folks dye with?" "Die with? Why cholera, sometimes," replied John. "Well, I believe that's the name; I want three cent's worth."

☞ "You may depend upon it," said Thoreau, "that the poor fellow who walks away from the post-office with the greatest number of letters, proud of his correspondence, has not heard from himself for a long time."

☞ A gentleman, who has unfortunately broken his word is anxious to procure some coment that will repair it. The same composition with which people mend their manners may possibly answer.

Tuesday morning Oct. 25, 1870.

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } EDITORS.

The "Globe" has the largest number of readers of any other paper published in the county. Advertisers should remember this.

☞ It tickles us all over to see how good Mr. Cremer feels over the result of the last election in this county.

"What did it?"—Johnstown Tribune. The guerrillaism of Mr. Morrell's confidants and office-holders last fall.

☞ Last year the guerrilla organ, the Republican, crowed loudly over the defeat of Republican nominees. This year somebody else "phrowed dat brick," and the head of the guerrilla clan is crushed.

"The Convention which nominated our county ticket was composed of a majority of independent Republicans, and could have put up a straight out ticket."—Guerrilla Republican.

Will you please name the men nominated not "straight-out" Republicans?

☞ It is feared that Secretary Cox of the Interior is resigning his position in the Cabinet because he will not prostitute his position to partisan purposes. We hope, for the sake of the Administration, that this is a false impression. It is strongly suspected by some that Cox is a Democrat.

☞ The guerrilla stockholders of the Republican didn't want Woods elected. They favored his nomination only to secure Morrell's election. The most of them, if not all, "cut" Woods quietly, and if he had not been voted for by Democrats he would have run three or four hundred behind Wilson. The guerrillas got beat at their own game.

☞ We understand Mr. Morrell has lost confidence in the men who carried his coat-tail during the last campaign. We told him before the nomination what he might expect, and we never had any other opinion from the day he was nominated to the day he was defeated by the conduct of those he supposed controlled the Republican party of this county.

☞ The Guerrilla organ, the Republican, is in a dreadful way. It wants to make the Republican party too hot for Republicans who did not vote for Morrell, to return to. What impudence! The organ of a faction that defeated the party last fall, now claiming to speak for the party. We think the guerrilla faction should be the last to complain—it received only justice in the defeat of the only candidate it was anxious to have elected.

☞ Major General John A. Logan, Commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has recently issued an important order relative to the graves of deceased Union soldiers, which cannot be given too wide publicity. Many of the fallen heroes are buried in obscure and out-of-the-way places, known only to a few friends or acquaintances. The order alluded to calls upon persons knowing of such graves to report the information to some officer of the organization. In this State the proper person to address upon the subject is Major A. R. Calhoun, of Philadelphia.

VICE PRESIDENT COLFAX.—The Hon Schuyler Colfax spoke at Mickawaukee, Indiana, recently and said it was positively his purpose to retire to private life at the end of the term for which he had been elected, and that he had made this canvass in gratitude for the past favors the people had been pleased to confer upon him, and then said: "You will never look upon my face again speaking in a political campaign." The country will regret to lose the services of so good and useful a statesman as Mr. Colfax. He means to recruit his private fortunes, which have suffered by his public life.

☞ We sometimes hear people talk of large churches in our cities, and special note is made of one in Brooklyn that comfortably seats 4,000 people. But what are such edifices to some of the great cathedrals of the old world? Saint Peter's, at Rome, will accommodate 54,000; the Cathedral at Milan, 37,000; Saint Paul's, in London, 25,000; St. Sophia, at Constantinople, 23,000; Notre Dame, of Paris, 21,000. It is difficult to form a correct opinion, without having actually seen it, of a building that will contain 54,000 people; but Saint Peter's at Rome, does.

☞ Philadelphia has another political trouble At the recent meeting of the Return Judges a party of roughs rushed in upon them and attacked them. One of the judges, Alexander Crawford, who appeared to be the special target of the rabble, and who could not escape, took out his pistol and shot John C. Nolen, who has since died.—Nolen made a dying declaration that he was shot by Crawford, and that he was instigated to commit the murder by William B. Mann, late District Attorney. An order for the arrest of Mann was accordingly issued by Mayor Fox, and it now remains for him to vindicate himself before a court of justice.

Nearly every city of Europe has a charitable "home for consumptives.

☞ Business men in Europe begin to calculate the commercial results of the war. In England, and here in the United States, there has been a certain revival in the iron trade, consequent upon the closing of more than one of the principal continental manufacturing establishments; but ere long many English people will have to make up their minds to do without many articles which hitherto they have had no difficulty in getting. Even in Germany no indemnity that can be exacted will prevent people from being poorer than before. Large bodies of men have been suddenly transmuted from producers into consumers, and many have been incapacitated from being anything but consumers for the remainder of their natural lives. Who shall describe the condition of France? The resources of the country were first of all crippled by the drought and a bad crop, and then came the war, which put a stop to all work, and utterly ruined a fifth of the departments and has prepared for the winter a heart-rending amount of distress. In Paris alone more than a million of people, who depended on their wages, have been more than six weeks without employment, and then there are the 200,000 people of the suburbs outside the fortifications, who were compelled to leave their homes, and who have no means of supporting themselves. "When the war is over," says a French pastor, "there will be a veritable abyss of misery." These considerations have an important bearing on the interests and industries of other countries, our own included, which cannot be ignored in our future business calculations, and in the financial relations of the various nations of Europe with the United States.

☞ The late State Prison Congress held in Cincinnati has brought to light the fact that not alone at Sing Sing and Hartford was our convicts treated as if they were brutes instead of human beings We learn that Ohio has never seen a prisoner graveyard or heard a funeral service over the grave of a dead convict—with even acres of unemployed grounds and salaried employees of religious profession. In the ancient and honorable city of Lexington, Ky., women sentenced for breaking the ordinances of that city have been compelled to "break stone"—the hard blue limestone, for street-paving and road-piking—upon the public streets. This is now observed within the shelter of the Workhouse by women, white or black. In the female prison at Frankfort white women are clad in the dress of male convicts, working hemp; and a recent visitor was informed (and the chair and the "strop" were shown him) that men strop women, white and black, for the non-completion of daily tasks; that upon the shrinking flesh of women's shoulders comes down the blows of the thong, and that "we can't get along without it." This is rather heavy for that portion of our country which professes to have such a regard for all women. With the whipping-post in Delaware, and such outrages as we have noticed above, the question may well be asked whether we are a Christian or civilized people.

☞ There appears to be some trouble in getting a Minister to England. A number of prominent individuals have been named, but none of them have as yet accepted the honor, and so the position goes a-begging. This is about the first time that a place of honor and profit in America has wanted for an occupant, and we hail it as a good sign for the prosperity of our people. It may be that the position is so surrounded with perplexities, particularly the oft-quoted Alabama question, that nobody is desirous of taking any responsibility. It is a good opportunity for some one to make his name immortal, for if he councils war he will be to blame, and if he settles the difficulty without bloodshed, he will deserve lasting credit for harmonizing both nations upon some of the most aggravating questions. Who the statesman will be is anxiously looked for.

☞ The Philadelphia Public Ledger has been investigating the cheese business, a branch of manufacturing of which little is known in this part of the country. It learns that in 1868 there were 792 cheese factories in operation in the United States, of which 660 were in New York, 72 in Ohio, 26 in Illinois, 25 in Vermont, and 8 in Wisconsin. Since then the number has largely increased, two hundred factories having been started in New York, and fifty-four in Wisconsin. The cheese product, under the factory system, it has stated, has raised from one hundred and five million pounds in 1860 to two hundred and forty million pounds in 1868, while the demand in the latter year exceeded the supply seventy-two million pounds. The entire dairy product of the United States in 1868, it is estimated, was worth four hundred millions of dollars

☞ A communication from this place appears in the Philadelphia Press of the 24th inst., which will receive proper attention hereafter. A truthful expose of all the causes that brought about Mr. Morrell's defeat would make his confidants feel very small as Republicans and party men. The communication is not a statement of facts.

Summary of War News.

There has been no fighting during the last ten days, except slight skirmishes in the vicinity of Paris. The reports in the forepart of the week, of heavy battles in which the French were victorious, and the Prussians were on the retreat, are without foundation.

The Prussians still hold their own and are receiving large reinforcements. They have not yet commenced a general bombardment of Paris, but are getting their siege guns into position for that purpose.

The Prussians have captured Orleans; and there is a report that forces on either side are concentrating near that city and that a great battle is imminent. The French government is still at Tours, while the headquarters of King William continue at Versailles near Paris.

The fortresses of Paris keep up a continual fire, destroying the batteries of the Prussians as fast as they are erected within range. The Parisians burned St. Cloud to prove to the enemy that they will hesitate at no sacrifice to save the city.

The German army in France is kept up by constant reinforcements, and it is estimated that there are fully 600,000 armed Germans on French soil.

EARTHQUAKE.

A Severe Shock Felt in all Parts of the Country.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—A violent shock of earthquake was felt, at 11:25 this morning, all over the country, and was distinctly felt in New York.

SCHENECTADY, Oct. 20.—This city was visited with a severe shock of earthquake at quarter past 11 this morning. All the inhabitants rushed terror-stricken into the streets, and the excitement is intense. Buildings swayed so as to be perceptible to the naked eye. Much confusion prevails, and it is impossible to ascertain whether any serious damage was done.

In Canada

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—At quarter past 11 o'clock this morning a severe shock of earthquake was felt here. Buildings rocked to and fro, and every body rushed into the streets in alarm

The Shock in New England.

Boston, Oct. 20.— An earthquake was felt here at 11:26 this forenoon, causing a preceptible vibration of buildings, and creating great alarm among the people employed in upper stories. Near the corner of State street and Merchant row, a block of granite in the building was cracked and another block forced outwards from the wall three or four inches. The shocks lasted thirty seconds. Reports from Montreal, Sackville, and Bangor state that the earthquake was felt at the same time with much force.

BURLINGTON, Vt, Oct. 20—A distinct shock of earthquake was felt here at 1:26 this morning, lasting about fifteen seconds. The vibrations were from south to north Clocks were stopped, crockery shaken down, etc., but no serious damage was done: No rumbling was heard.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 20.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt here about 11:35 this morning. Buildings were shook quite perceptibly, and on the wharves it was felt much distinctly.

Excitement in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—About 11:15 to-day a shock of earthquake was felt in this city, lasting seven seconds.—An undulating motion was distinctly perceptible, accompanied some reports state, by a rumbling noise. The occurrence has naturally caused great excitement.

The Earthquake in the West.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—A very sensible shock of earthquake was felt here this morning at about 7 o'clock, lasting 15 or 20 seconds.

The National Bank building, Atwater block, and other large buildings swayed to and fro, causing the persons occupying the upper stories to flock into the streets in the greatest consternation. The same shock was plainly felt in Meadeville, Pa., but it cannot be traced to any other locality.

Effects of the Quake.

ITHICA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Three distinct shocks of earthquake were heard here at ten minutes past 11 o'clock this morning—New York time. The motion was from North to South. Windows rattled and clocks stopped.

Earthquake in Albany.

ALBANY, Oct. 20.—A distinct earthquake occurred in this city about eleven o'clock to-day. It was perceptible in all parts of the city. Houses were shaken and to such an extent as to set in motion all suspended objects. It was of course more perceptible in upper stories of houses; and in many instances the motion was felt in the lower and even in the basement stories.—The children and teachers in several schools were quite alarmed, and there was a rush from some of them to escape. Persons engaged in engraving and drawing, found themselves compelled to suspend operations for a minute or two. In some houses tinware was made to rattle and everywhere chandeliers vibrated alarmingly. The motion was mostly perceptible on the hills, where the shock was so distinct that it was supposed there had been a heavy explosion in the neighborhood. Many in their terror ran out of their houses. No damage occurred to buildings.

Shock of Earthquake.

HARTFORD, Oct. 20.—A shock of earthquake was noticed in this city about 11 o'clock to-day. The trembling lasted several seconds.

The Patriot says that Capt. Nevin, of Harrisburg, has a rose bush which has grown (perpendicularly) ten feet three inches since last spring, and wants to know who can beat it.

It is said that, at the lowest calculation, three hundred thousand bales of cotton will be made in Georgia during the present season, and that the wheat crop is the finest ever gathered in the state.

THANKSGIVING.

By the President of the United States: A Proclamation.

Whereas, It behooves a people sensible of their dependence on the Almighty, publicly and collectively to acknowledge their gratitude for his favors and mercies, and humbly beseech for their continuance; and

Whereas, The people of the United States, during the year now about to end, have special cause to be thankful for the general prosperity, abundant harvests, exemption from pestilence, foreign war and civic strife; now, therefore, be it known, that I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, concurring in any similar recommendation from chief magistrates of States, do hereby recommend to all citizens to meet in their respective places of worship on Thursday, the 24th day November next, there to give thanks for the bounty of God during the year about to close, and to supplicate for its continuance hereafter.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 21st day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, and of the independence of the United States the ninety fifth.

HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State

FUNDING THE NATIONAL DEBT.—Sec. Boutwell has issued a circular defining his plan for commencing the work of funding the five twenties under the law passed at the last session of Congress. Subscriptions will be invited from the public, and respectable bankers allowed commissions for negotiating the new loan, which is exchangeable at par for the old. The circular also declares in what order awards shall be made where subscriptions are competing, and is a general elaboration of the powers conferred on the Secretary of the Treasury by the Funding bill.

☞ The flying George Francis Train announces his intention to join the French army. We would not be surprised next to hear of this braggadocio doing as much for the Prussian army, providing they would accept him.

The Way to Write an Advertisement.

By no means the least useful and interesting portions of a live newspaper, says the Ledger, are found in the columns edited by the public, that is to say, the advertising department.—No matter how well the editorials may be written, or how graphically the news may be presented, none of these carefullly elaborated or judiciously condensed columns "come home to the business and bosoms" of some readers more effectively than new advertisements do to others. When the advertising columns are occupied by dreary, prosy, long affairs, repeated day after and month after month, people tire of seeing them. They are not features of busy, but of stagnant life. But when advertisements, new in every issue, short, crisp, and to the point, meet the reader's eye he feels that the world moves and he is inspired to move with it. There is something inspiriting and cheerful, encouraging and hopeful in the very look of well filled advertising columns. The men who succeed best in business and keep up with the times, are those who not only read the advertisements diligently, but who do their share in keeping them "ever charming, ever new."

New and Attractive Books.

We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement for agents of S. B. Taylor, in to-day's issue. Among the books referred to, are "The Eminent Women of the Age" which has reached the sale of over 40,000 copies. It contains biographies of all the prominent women of the day. The authors are men of letters. Many beautiful steel portraits adorn its pages.—This is the book for agents. "The New World compared with the Old" is another work of great merit. From the pen of George Alfred Townsend it cannot be common. Its pages are filled with knowledge alike useful to all. It is a work of comparison, in it our own institutions and those of Europe are compared and criticised with a master hand. It is beautifully illustrated and contains more matter than any other book of the same price now offered to the public. An admirable work of travel is "Lost Abroad." Always read with pleasure, it is universally admired. The author shows us foreign life and scenery so vividly that we feel after its perusal as if we had journeyed with him. Agents applying first, will receive first choice of territory, and can do no better than to canvass for one or more of the above mentioned works.

Look out for Colds.

Now is just the time to take cold, while the weather is changing from the extreme warmth of summer to the cooler condition of fall. Men often leave their homes in the morning when the sun is shining warm and pleasant, and therefore, do not take more than a sufficient amount of clothing for present need. Perhaps, before night, a cold, drizzling rain sets in, and the system is chilled, inducing rheumatisms, catarrhs, fevers, etc., etc., and all for the want of a little more precaution in the amount of clothing to protect to body. It is far preferable to suffer a little inconvenience from a woolen shirt during the warm part of the day than to suffer from chills towards evening.

☞We were presented, last week, with several loaves of Aerated Bread, by Luke Reilly, who is the agent for the sale of the same in this place. BEAUTIFUL.—About seven o'clock last evening the sky presented a beautiful and singular phenomenon. Above our town and stretching from the north-east to the southwest, there appeared a broad band of dark crimson light, which was bordered by a circle of intenser light of blue and yellow.—The band kept moving southward, varying in brightness until about half-past nine, when the ordinary auroral lights were seen in the north, when the phenomenon disappeared. The frequent recurrence of signs in the heavens is surprising astronomers, and some persons are ready to imagine that the scripture is about to be fulfilled and the world is coming to an end. There is that in such phenomena as was visible last evening as should fill the heart with awe and admiration of the works of the Almighty.

HUNTINGDON COUNTY, SS.

Whereas, Louisa C. Reid, by her father, and next friend, Frederick Schneider, did on the 11th day of April, A.D. 1870, prefer her petition to the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of the said county of Huntingdon praying that forcauses therein set forth she might be divorced from the bonds of matrimony entered into with you the said Nevin Reid, we therefore command you, as before commanded, that setting aside all other business and excuses whatsoever, you be and appear in your proper person before our Judges at Huntingdon at our county court of Common Pleas, there to be held for the said county on the second Monday of Nov 1870, next, to answer the petition or libel of the said Louisa C. Reid, and to show cause, if any you have, why the said Louisa C. Reid, your wife, should not be divorced from the bonds of matrimony entered into with you agreeably to the Act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth in such cases made and provided, and hereof fail not Witness the Hon. Geo. Taylor, President of our said Court, the 13th of August, 1870.

AGENTS Wanted for SATAN IN SOCIETY

A NEW BOOK of the greatest interest and importance Written from a high moral and physiological standpoint by an eminent physician and medical professor, it shows how Satan is working out his subtle and dangerous designs through our most sacred domestic and social plantations. Pure-minded, but outspoken and aggressive, the author handles the delicate subjects treated of without gloves, but in such a manner as not to minister to a prurient curiosity. The Physical Regeneration of the Race, is a subject justly outshining the interest and sympathy of all true philanthropists, and this book, it is believed, will contribute to that end just in proportion as it has readers. ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and for our Rosadal is Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreeboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sores on.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XXXIV.

SHEEP AND WOOL-GROWING.

Ours is eminently an agricultural country. We produce most of our food and export much more than we import of both Grain and meat. Of Cotton, we grow some three millions of bales annually, whereof we export fully two thirds. But of this we reimport a portion in the shape of fabrics and of thread, and yet, while we are largely clothed in woolens, and extensive sections of our country are admirably adapted to the rearing of Sheep and the production of Wool, we not only import a considerable share of the Woolens in which we are clad, but we also import a considerable proportion of the Wool wherefrom we manufacture the Woolens fabricated on our own soil. In other words: while we are a nation of farmers and herdsmen, we fail to grow so much Wool as is needed to shield us against the caprices and inclemencies of our diverse but generally fitful climates.

There is a seeming excuse for this in the fact that extensive regions in South America and Australia are devoted to Sheep-growing where animals are neither housed nor herded, and where they are exclusively fed, at all seasons, on those native grasses which are the spontaneous products of the soil. I presume Wool is in those regions produced cheaper than it can permanently be on any considerable area of our own soil; and yet I believe that the United States should, and profitably might, grow as much wool as is needed for their own large annual consumption. Here are my reasons:

I. When the predominant interest of British manufactures constrained the entire repeal of the duties on imported wool, whereby Sheep-growing had previously been protected, the farmers apprehended that they must abandon that department of their industry; but the event proved this calculation a mistake. They grow more Sheep and at better profit to-day than they did when their wool brought a higher price under the influence of protective duties, because the largely increased price of their Mutton more than makes up to them their loss by the reduced prices of their wool. So while I do not expect that American wool will ever again command such high prices as it has done at some periods in the past, I am confident that the general appreciation in the prices of Meat, which has occurred within the last ten or fifteen years, and which seems likely to be enduring, will render Sheep growing more profitable in the future than it has been in the past. At all events, while our farmers are generally obliged to sell their Grain and Meat at prices somewhat below the range of the British markets, it is hardly conceivable that they should not afford to grow wool, for which they receive higher average prices than the British farmers do, who feed their Sheep on the produce of lands worth from $300 to $500 (gold) per acre.

II. Interest being relatively high in this country and capital with most farmers deficient, it is a serious objection to cattle-growing that the farmer must wait three or four years before receiving a return of his outlay. If he begins poor, with but a few cows and a team, he naturally wants to rear and keep all his calves for several years in order to adequately stock his farm, so that little or no income is in the meantime realized from his herd; whereas a flock of Sheep yields a fleece per head each year, though not even a lamb is sold, while its increase in numbers is far more rapid than that of a herd of cattle.

III. Almost every farmer, at least in the old States, finds some part of his land infested with bushes and briars, which seem to flourish by cutting, if he finds time to cut them, and which the ruggedness of his soil precludes his exterminating by the plow. In every such case, Sheep are his natural allies—his unpaid police—his vigilant and thorough-going assistants. Give them an even start in Spring with the bushes and briars; let their number be sufficient; and they are very sure to come out ahead in the Fall.

IV. Our farmers in the average are too much confined in Summer and Autumn to salt meat, and especially to pork. However excellent in quality those may be, their exclusive use is neither healthful nor palatable. With a good flock of Sheep, the most secluded farmer may have fresh meat every week in haying and harvest-time if he chooses, and he will find this better for his family, and more satisfactory to his workmen, than a diet wherefrom fresh meat is excluded.

V. Now, I do not insist that every farmer should grow Sheep; for I know that many are so situated that they cannot. In stony regions, where walls are very generally relied on for fences, I am aware that Sheep are with difficulty kept within bounds; and this is a serious objection. In the neighborhood of cities and large villages, where fresh meat may be bought from day to day, one valid reason for keeping them has no application; yet I hold that twice as many of our farmers as now have flocks ought to have them, and would thereby increase their profits as well as the comfort of their families.

The most serious obstacle to Sheep husbandry in this country is the abundance and depredations of dogs.—Farmers by tens of thousands have sold off, or killed off, their flocks, mainly because they could not otherwise protect themselves against their frequent decimation by prowling curs, which were not worth the powder required to shoot them. It seems to me that a farmer thus despoiled is perfectly justifiable in placing poisoned food where these cut-throats will be apt to find it while making their next raid on his Sheep. I should have no scruple in so doing, provided I could guard effectually against the poisoning of any other than the culprits.

In a well-settled, thrifty, region, where ample barns are provided, I judge that the losses of sheep by dogs may be reduced to a minimum by proper precautions. Elsewhere than in wild, new frontier settlements, every flock of sheep should have a place of refuge beneath the hay-floor of a good barn, and be trained to spend every night there, as well to seek this shelter against every pelting storm. Even if sent some distance to pasture, an unbarred lane should connect such pasture with their fold; and they should be driven home for a few nights, if necessary, until they had acquired the habit of coming home at nightfall; and I am assured that sheep thus lodged will very rarely be attacked by dogs or wolves.

As yet, our farmers have not generally realized that enhancement of the value of mutton, whereby their British rivals have profited so largely. Their fathers began to breed sheep when a fleece sold for much more than a carcase, and when fineness and abundance of wool were the main consideration. But such is no longer the fact, at least in the Eastern and Middle States—To-day, large and long-wooled sheep of the Cotswold and similar breeds are grown with far greater profit in this section than the fine-wooled Merino and Saxony, except where choice specimens of the latter can be sold at high prices for removal to Texas and the Far West. The growing of these highpriced animals must necessarily be confined to few hands. The average farmer cannot expect to sell bucks at $1,000, and even at $5,000, as some have been sold, or at least reported.—He must calculate that his sheep are to be sold when sold at all, at prices ranging from ten dollars down to five dollars, if not lower, so that mechanics and merchants may buy and eat them without absolute ruin; and he must realize that 100 pounds of mutton at 10 cents, with 6 pounds of wool at 30 cents, amount to more than 60 pounds of mutton at 8 cents, and 10 pounds of wool at 60 cents. Farmers who grow sheep for mutton in this vicinity, and manage to have lambs of good size for sale in June or July, assure me that their profit on these is greater than on almost anything else their farms will produce; and they say what they know.

The satisfactory experience of this class may be repeated to-day in the neighborhood of any considerable city in the Union. Sheep-growing is no experiment; it is an assured and gratifying success with all who understand and are fitly placed for its prosecution.—Wool may never again be so high as we have known it, since the Far West and Texas can grow it very cheaply, while its transportation costs less than five per cent. of its value, where that of Grain would be 75 per cent.; but mutton is a wholesome and generally acceptable meat, whereof the use and popularity are daily increasing; so that its market value will doubtless be greater in the future than it has been in the past. I would gladly incite the farmers of our country to comprehend this fact, and act so as to profit by it.

ADDRESS

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED

FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE

CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or ropy, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for the cure of throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., med um size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by SOLDIERS' HEIRS, ATTENTION!

The act of Congress approved March 2, 1867, gives to Heirs of Soldiers who died prisoners of war, or the time the soldier was so held a prisoner, at the rate of twenty-five cents per day, to be paid in the following order: 1st. To the widow, if unmarried; 2d. To the children; 3d. To the parents, to both jointly if they are living, if either is dead, to the survivor; 4th. To the brothers and sisters.

The act of February 28, 1867, provides for the refunding of the $300 Commutation Money, where the same person was again drafted, and was required to enter the service or furnish a substitute.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.

The act of March 2, 1867, also makes provisions for the payment of the
